Kinney Bros' Big Cigarette Factory Destroyed by Fire.

Five Buildings Burned Till Nothing Was Left but the Walls.

Six Hundred Employees Rendered Idle—Cause of the Fire Unknown.

The Kinney Brothers' branch of the American Tobacco Company's cigarette factories was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The loss will probably aggregate $500,000.

The factory is located in West Twenty-second street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues, and extends from 213 to 229 inclusive. The number of employees thrown out of employment by the fire, as nearly as could be ascertained, is over 500 of whom are girls and the remainder men and boys.

The first alarm was turned in at 5:45 A. M. from the box at the corner of Tenth and Twenty-second streets, and twenty minutes later Battalion Fire Chief Campbell was at the scene with several engines and a hook and ladder truck.

Heavy clouds of dense black smoke and tongues of flame were pouring out of the basement window under No. 221. Chief Campbell took in the situation at a glance, and realizing that the fire must have been burning for a considerable time before the alarm had been turned in, and that in all probability it had spread to other basement compartments, sent out three more alarms.

Before couplings could be made to the hydrants the flames burst through the first floor and spread with surprising rapidity through the building, which is connected by arches and doors through its whole length.

First Assistant Chief Stokes arrived about 6:30 o'clock and at once took charge of affairs. At that time the fire had been communicated to the five-story brick structure at the extreme west of the row of buildings.

Firemen Begin Their Fight.

Chief McCabe divided the forces of the Department and began fighting the flames from the east and west sides, from the rear on the Twenty-third street side and at the place where the blaze was first discovered, which was then a mass of black smoke and flames, and in immense quantities of water were poured by the seventeen engines into the basement, and the fire was kept in check to make any impression on the fire.

These columns of steam and smoke continued to pour out, at times obscuring the entire building, and rendering it extremely difficult for the firemen to work. The firemen at one time were wholly added by smoke from the view of the thoroughfare, and the fire was not seen until the firemen, who had been working in the basement, saw the flames and the smoke billowing out of the windows.

At that time the fire had been communicated to the five-story brick structure at the extreme west of the row of buildings.

HIS BODY LOST UNDER A PIER.

The Unknown Man Who Refused Aid and Was Drowned.

Planks Must Be Torn Away to Recover the Body.

After a delay of nearly thirty-six hours the planks blocking the crib dock at the foot of East Seventy-sixth street will be ripped off and the body of the unknown man who deliberately walked into the water from the foot of East Seventy-sixth street at 5:00 o'clock yesterday morning, will be taken out.

It was just after daylight yesterday morning when Capt. James Nugent, of the canal boat Francis Ryan, of New Brunswick, N. J., had his attention attracted by a well-dressed man standing at the corner of a stone wall which extends to the foot of the seventy-sixth street dock. Capt. Nugent said good morning, but the man made no reply and walked away.

Capt. Nugent's boat is one of three tied up at the dock and lies about 25 feet from the shore. The captain told an Evening World reporter this morning that he had taken a good look at the stranger and judged him to be about fifty years old, five feet eleven inches tall, with a dark brown mustache, and dressed in a well-made suit of black and worn a brown Derby hat. He carried himself, Capt. Nugent says, as if he were a military man.

Two minutes after the man turned to walk away, Capt. Nugent went towards the boat to talk to him on a plank stretched from the boat to a tree on the bank. He told the man that he was the owner of the boat and that he was a military man. The man said that he was a military man and that he was a military man. The End So Peaceful that Only the Doctor Knew When It Came.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Lord Tennyson died at 1:35 A. M.

Sir Andrew Clark, one of the physicians who attended him, said that Lord Tennyson's death was the most glorious he had ever seen.

There was no artificial light in the room, and the chamber was almost in darkness, save where a broad flood of moonlight poured in through a western window.

The end was peaceful, and only the doctor knew when it came.

The family did not know he was gone until Dr. Clark broke the news to Lady Tennyson.

The Hon. William Tennyson, the poet's son, says that his father once or twice during the night lifted his eyes to the faces of his watchers and a beautiful smile played over his features. As the end came he appeared to fall asleep.

NEW YORK'S HEART ISTOUCHEO

Quick Responses to Mrs. Hemmings' Cry For Aid.

Contributions Aggregating $89.50 Come in a Few Hours.

The appeal made yesterday in The Evening World in behalf of Mrs. Hemmings, the poor widow with four small children, whose destitute and pitiable condition was so graphically set forth in her letter, has touched the hearts of many generous readers.

The story of her distress had scarcely been known to the public before contributions began to pour in from those whose sympathies were aroused by her sad tale.

Neighbors who had never suspected Mrs. Hemmings' torrid condition called in to see her, anxious to relieve her immediate necessities.

Through The Evening World she has already received $89.50. The first $5 came in early yesterday afternoon, and was contributed by a gentleman who wished to be known as an "American Hero."

He came into The Evening World office with a copy of the paper in his hands and said he had just read the account of Mrs. Hemmings' sufferings, and wished to relieve her immediately. His eyes were suspiciously moist when he told her the story had affected him.

The $5 was at once sent to the widow, who received it with heart-felt thanks.

Last evening she received several callers, who brought her food, clothing for her children and money, and this morning The Evening World sent her $24.50 which had been received since last night.

One of the subscribers to the World's Fund was "P. D. and N." who gave $25 to the fund collected by The Evening World for the purchase of artificial limbs for Mrs. Aaron Hester last July.

He now comes forward with $20 for Mrs. Hemmings.

This morning the employees of the commission house at 71 Thomas street took up a subscription for the fund and raised $11, which sum was brought to The Evening World office to be forwarded to Mrs. Hemmings.
